BEAUTIFYING THE BACK YARD

No matter how small a yard you have, there are possibilities for making it a joy to yourself and to others. In the congested parts of a city imagine the pleasure of those who live on the third and four floors of a house or anything when they may hope or apartment when they may look down upon a tiny spot of green! It tells them of the changing seasons; it rests them after a hard days work; it stimulates them with hope; it re-freshes them as nothing but a touch of beauty can freshes them as nothing but a touch of heauty can.

Occasionally one comes upon such a yard, even in the older, poorer districts, when the owner has neither much time or money to expend upon it; but much may be done where there is an inherent love for growing things. One pacticular garden had for its nucleus a great wistaria vine, which was strong and tenuous with age, and it glorified the backs of unsightly houses and shielded an alley from view. No passer-by on the street could suspect the wealth of beauty that lay hidden passer-by on the street could suspect the wealth of beauty that lay hidden behind the shabby house. The little back let was arlow with the huge purble flowers in full bloom, making the rickety fence look picturesque. But this vine had been levingly tended, else it would have long since fallen into decay, as had its neighbors. Another fence was made attractive by vines that clambered from boxes which were placed at measured distances. were placed at measured distances along the yard. There was a narrow flower-bed in the centre of the thay grass plot. Surely not a pretentious garden, but one that soothed the nerves at evening and made known to all the world that spring had come,

Dutchman's Pipe, privet, Japanese quince, barbery, with its purple leaves, and Virginia creeper are all hardy and can accommodate themselves to not too fine an environment. The quickly-growing morning glories and moon flowers are very satisfactory substitutes while waiting for these others to grow luxurious. A Little Arbor.

It Was an Accident Originally, but While this new creation in fruits is extensively cultivated and extremely popular on the Pacific const, where it originated, it has barely been seen in the East thus far, nor is it likely to be. The Loganberry is an accident, originating purely by chance in the garden of Judge Logan in Santa Cruz Cal.

The fruits are very large, often one and a half inches in length and raspberry-like in shape, with larger pips and a dark-er color than that fruit. It may easily be grown in the East if it is well protected during the winter. For some reason, though perfectly hardy in the West, it does not withstand the Eastern winters. The flavor here is not so good, and as the fruit cannot be shipped with any degree of success for such long dis-tances there does not seem to be much hope for its general adoption here. However, it is by no means a failure, and should be tried out in the garden, divisions being made in the fall or early in the spring. JUDICIAL COMMITTEE

Disclaims Being Tribunal, but Is Merely Adviser to Sovereign.

By La Marquise De Fontenoy.

Until now the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council has been popularly regarded as the highest tribunal of the British empire—higher even than the House of Lords. In a remarkable decision just given by the committee in question, in the case of the appeal of Channing Arnold, the Anglo-American editor of the Burmah Critic, from a conviction of defamation of character by the chier court of Lower Burmah, this general view is repudiated.

The committee disclaims the idea of being a tribunal. It is merely a committee of advice for the sovereign mittee of advice for the sovereign the courts of justice that administer the law in his name, unless it can be shown that there has been such an interference with the elementary rights of the accused, as to have placed him outside of the pale of regular law, or if there has been a violation of the natural principles of justice, so dem
